HOW DO THEY WORK

The adaptor learns to recognise the signal from your television remote control; this enables it to activate your television automatically into standby mode whenever you are ready to use it. When you have finished using your television you switch it off in the normal way using your remote control and the IntelliPanel adaptor does the rest! Instead of simply switching off the television the clever IntelliPanel adaptor continues to record the amount of power being drawn by the television and waits until the internal circuitry has completely powered down into standby state, only then does the IntelliPanel adaptor switch the television and peripheral equipment off.
